BATOOR

A REFUGEE JOURNEY

Barat Ali Batoor was once Afghanistan's most esteemed photographer working for the United States Embassy in Kabul. But in 2011, all this changed when The Washington Post published his potent photo essay exposing one of Afghanistan's darkest secrets – the brutal trade in young 'dancing boys' for the purposes of entertainment and forced prostitution.

Surviving Skokie

108

They survived the horrors of the Holocaust and came to America to put the past behind. For decades they kept their awful memories secret, even from their children. But their silence ended when an uprising of Neo-Nazis threatened to march in their quiet village of Skokie, Illinois, "because that is where the Jews are."

Surviving Skokie is an intensely personal documentary by former Skokie resident Eli Adler about the provocative events of the 1970s, their aftermath, his family's horrific experience of the Shoah, and a journey with his father to confront long-suppressed memories.

KING FOR A DAY

A film about the world of Elvis impersonators

King for a Day

108

The documentary explores the worldwide phenomenon of Elvis impersonators and Elvis contests. Starting in the Canadian small town of Collingwood, that hosts one of the largest Elvis Festivals in the world, filmmaker Tracey Johnston delves deep into the world of fake hair, spray tan and sparkling jumpsuits. She discovers the commercial sector of Elvis festivals and road trips to Memphis, the heart of Elvis.

The film examines why thousands of artists dedicate their lives to impersonating Elvis. King for a Day explores greed, corruption and cultural abduction and asks the question of what would Elvis have to say about all of this?

LEGACY OF A WAR

AIR AMERICA AND SOUTHEAST ASIA

Just over 40 years after the end of the Second Indochina War, Legacy of a War: Air America and Southeast Asia investigates the origins and history of that war, particularly in Laos, while focusing on the personal stories of the men on both sides who took part in it.

Not only does it screen their personal reminiscences, however, it also gives voice to an assessment of the continuing effects of the war all these years later. Drawing upon archival material, personal interviews, and current film footage shot throughout Laos and Thailand, the film gives a context to the war then and how many perceive it now.

The Boers at the End of the World

108

In remote Patagonia, a family – the Dickasons – speak a language from a country 7,000km away. They are part of a 115-year-old Afrikaans Boer community – South African settlers who crossed the Atlantic after a war against the British. Today, less than 50 speak archaic Afrikaans here and they struggle to keep their culture alive.

Ty Dickason, 82, a cowboy who has never flown in a plane, yearns to visit the country of his forefathers before he dies. This award-winning documentary is a portrait of a parallel world where Afrikaans was never linked to Apartheid, and one family's journey to their roots.
